

What we do

Fully Loaded Electronics is a one-stop video game system and consumer electronics solution for hospitals and other institutions. We specialize in providing consoles and tablets that are pre-loaded with games and movies, along with accessories that help with mobility and security for these devices. Our goal is that when our clients receive a Fully Loaded system, all they have to do is press the "on" button and start enjoying content safely and securely. To our knowledge, we are the only company in the United States that provides such a service.

How we service our devices

We set up our systems to have internet disabled and parental controls configured, to curb unwanted information being loaded onto the system. We create unique accounts for each system and set up profiles on the console in a way that is consistent across all the devices we provide. We give our clients a short guide on how these systems are set up, and if they have any questions, they can call our tech support any time.

Why we provide this service

Fully Loaded Electronics first started out as a company that loads video games onto systems for individuals and families. After being contacted by several pediatric centers, we realized that there is a need for a dependable video game and electronics source for hospitals and other establishments. Hospitals, domestic violence shelters, and other rehabilitation facilities largely look to video games to bring familiarity and comfort to patients while healing. Products such as virtual reality and iPads with movies can help with distraction therapy while patients undergo treatment. Institutions that utilize us for their electronics needs save time and money by leaving the content installation, set-up, and configuration to us while their staff can continue being effective in their roles.
